“Our daughter came out of her mocks with a C- 40% in her pure paper - and needed an A to secure her Oxford offer. The targeted support she needed simply wasn't available to her at school.

A fellow St Paul's Girls' parent, already a client of Mandeep's, recommended him in our moment of need. He took us on immediately: twenty-one hour-long sessions across two months, from April up to the final exam in June.

He understood what she was finding difficult and why, and explained it clearly and concisely. A group chat meant she could reach him at any hour between sessions, and she always got a full answer quickly. Homework came from the questions that mattered, marked before the next lesson.

She was awarded her A. Words cannot do justice to our gratitude. She worked extremely hard - but her renewed enthusiasm and belief came from his exceptional ability to inspire confidence when it was most needed.”

GLOBAL MANAGING DIRECTOR
PARENT

Mandeep Singh is the Founder and Lead Educational Consultant at The Scholar, advising families across the UK and internationally on school selection, subject choices, academic development and university strategy.

A mathematics specialist, Mandeep spent five years teaching at King Edward's School, Birmingham, one of the UK's leading independent schools. He worked with students across a wide range of abilities, preparing them for scholarships, selective pathways and competitive university courses.

He is currently completing an MSc in Learning and Teaching at the University of Oxford, where his research explores how students' belief in their ability influences their engagement and academic outcomes. This research underpins The Scholar's distinctive approach, combining academic expertise with the development of confidence, independence and long-term ambition.

Mandeep advises families whose children attend leading schools including Eton, Harrow, St Paul's Girls', Wycombe Abbey, Westminster, Institut Le Rosey and the International School of Monaco. He also supports successful applications to Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard and other leading universities.

A member of The Tutors' Association, he regularly speaks within the education sector and visits independent schools. His work is defined by trusted relationships, informed judgement and a deep understanding of the independent education landscape.

Education is about more than grades. It is about building confident, resilient young people equipped to succeed wherever their ambitions take them.

MANDEEP SINGH — FOUNDER & DIRECTOR

OUR APPROACH

A single trusted partner, across every stage

Most families come to The Scholar with one question and stay for the next ten. A subject choice becomes a sixth form decision, which becomes a university strategy.

We hold the full picture. With extensive experience of the British independent school system, we help families make informed decisions about school selection, admissions, subject choices and university pathways, planning years ahead rather than just for the next assessment. Whichever tutor a family works with, Mandeep remains their client manager and adviser throughout, on hand for wider academic questions and guidance.

And because our founder's research at Oxford examines the link between a student's belief in their own ability and the results they achieve, confidence is not an afterthought here. It is designed into the work.

Making the most of limited time

Most of the students we work with are balancing demanding academic schedules with equally ambitious lives beyond the classroom. Competitive sport, music, drama, leadership opportunities, travel and family commitments can all place pressure on already limited time.

We have spent years helping families navigate exactly this challenge, creating realistic lesson and revision plans around students' actual schedules, identifying where their time will have the greatest impact, and helping them prioritise when everything cannot be done at once.

WYCOMBE
ABBEY

"Mandeep has made an exceptional difference to all three of our daughters, supporting them from 11+ preparation through to IGCSE and Additional Mathematics. His guidance helped our youngest daughter at Pembridge Hall secure an offer from Wycombe Abbey. He is an outstanding tutor and educational consultant whom we wholeheartedly recommend."

FAMILIES ACROSS EUROPE, THE MIDDLE EAST, ASIA & BEYOND

Educational Consultancy

From choosing the right preparatory school to preparing for admission to a leading university, families benefit from a highly personalised approach shaped around their child's abilities, ambitions and circumstances.

Subject & Curriculum Planning

From GCSE and IGCSE subject selection to deciding between A-levels and the International Baccalaureate, we help students choose subjects that reflect their strengths while preserving options for future university courses. Each recommendation forms part of a clear, personalised academic strategy aligned with the student's ambitions.

University Guidance

Successful university planning begins well before the application stage. We help families understand how early academic decisions shape future opportunities, covering degree and career pathway exploration, university selection, admissions strategy and preparation for competitive UK and international applications.

By taking a long view, students build a coherent academic profile rather than approaching each decision in isolation.

Long-Term Student Strategy

Our most distinctive service: a structured, multi-year plan covering a student's academic, personal, leadership, university and career development in one place. For families managing increasingly complex academic decisions, it provides one trusted partner who understands the full picture of a student's development, from school through to university and beyond.

School Advice

Choosing the right school is one of the most important decisions a family makes. We provide expert, impartial guidance to identify schools that align not only with a child's academic ability, but with their personality, interests and wider development. This covers state versus independent, day versus boarding, entry points, admissions strategy and scholarship applications.

Where it helps, we visit schools on a family's behalf, attending open mornings and meeting staff so that busy or internationally based families receive a first-hand account rather than a prospectus. We also advise on leading schools across the UK, Switzerland, Monaco, the UAE and other key destinations.

Godolphin & Latymer

“Our consultation covered sixth form options, A-level subject choices and university pathways. Mandeep explained A-levels versus the IB in a clear, balanced way. The advice went beyond grades.”

Admissions Support

Successful applications are built through early, thoughtful preparation. We guide families through every stage of the school and university admissions process, from initial strategy and entrance assessments to applications, interviews and final decisions.

OUR ADMISSIONS PROCESS

01 Initial consultation

We begin by understanding the student and the family — strengths, ambitions, timings and circumstances.

02 Research and groundwork

We consult specialists in our network and, where it helps, carry out visits on your behalf.

03 Proposal and plan

We set out a clear recommendation, then put a practical plan into action.

Super-Curricular Development

Super-curricular work deepens a student's engagement with a subject and demonstrates genuine intellectual curiosity. We go further than reading lists: we help students build something they can point to. Published articles, a research portfolio, a society or club they founded and ran, a professional online presence: the interest is evidenced rather than asserted when they come to apply.

- Subject-specific reading
- Founding clubs, societies & events
- Writing & publishing articles
- Independent research portfolios
- Olympiads & academic competitions
- Professional online profiles

Workshops & Wider Development

Skills that matter well beyond the examination hall, delivered by mentors drawn from business and industry. Students learn to speak persuasively, present themselves professionally, handle an interview and understand money. Practical, grounded and free of jargon.

- Introduction to investing workshops
- Personal branding & professional profiles
- Public speaking & debating
- Interview technique & presentation
- Sourcing work experience & placements
- Entrepreneurship & business skills

Chosen for more than their grades

Every tutor at The Scholar is a subject specialist, has undergone an enhanced DBS check, is covered by professional indemnity insurance and is personally selected by our founder.

Many of our tutors are graduates of the world's leading universities, including Oxford, Cambridge and the Ivy League. Several are also qualified teachers with years of experience in the independent sector.

But strong academic credentials are only the beginning. Just as important is a tutor's ability to inspire interest, rebuild confidence and motivate students, particularly when they feel discouraged or begin to doubt their ability.

We select tutors who explain clearly, listen carefully and create a patient, non-judgemental environment in which students feel comfortable admitting what they do not understand. They must also communicate openly with parents. Every tutor is personally chosen by our founder, allowing us to know them well and match them thoughtfully with each student.

WHAT EVERY TUTOR BRINGS

- Specialist subject expertise
- Enhanced DBS certification
- Professional indemnity insurance
- Personally selected by our founder
- Experience of the independent sector
- Clear, regular parent communication

Guidance Beyond the Classroom

Alongside our tutors, we work with a trusted network of mentors from business and industry, including senior leaders and successful founders. They support students through workshops in areas such as public speaking, personal branding, entrepreneurship and investing, offering valuable exposure to skills, perspectives and experiences that sit beyond the traditional classroom.

Our aim is to help students broaden their horizons, build confidence and better understand the opportunities available to them beyond school.
